Answer 2:

Field that I've chosen: Sports Trackers

Answer: According to me, Strava is the best app for tracking sports and fitness activities in general. Why do I think so? Well, when I use an app – I look for two things. One is the features that it has, and another is how well the features are implemented, and their accessibility.

On Strava, you can access a wide range of features without a premium membership, which makes it easy and convenient to use. Most other apps focus on a single activity, say running, and do not provide the option to track other actions like a walk or a bike ride. Strava also lets me build my own routes, and sign up for different challenges simultaneously. So far, I haven't seen other apps that contain this feature for casual users.

Moreover, the mobile app is user-friendly and so far, I've not seen any glitches. The fact that each page/screen on the app is clutter-free makes it very appealing to use. These features and the impeccable UI has me convinced that Strava is the best app in this field.
